

ELECTIVE RESIDENCY VISA

(National Visa)

The elective residence visa allows entry into the national territory, for the purpose of a long-term stay, for a fixed or indefinite period and who can demonstrate a stable and ample pension income and high financial resources.

The elective residency visa is NOT for extended tourism. It is not an end-run around the limited validity of Schengen tourist visas or the visa-waiver program, nor is it for letting you join family members or friends who have accepted temporary jobs in Italy. An individual applies for the elective residency visa with the intention of a long-term stay, for a fixed or indefinite period in Italy.

Individuals who receive an elective residency visa cannot work in Italy; they must be able to sustain themselves from their existing financial assets, such as annuities, stocks, pensions, bonds, and so forth. An applicant must demonstrate housing and financial resources for a minimum of one year. Upon arriving in Italy, applicants must apply at the local Questura (police headquarters) for a permesso di soggiorno (residency permit). Each year, the Questura will verify that the applicant still meets all the requirements for the elective residency visa and re-issue the permesso di soggiorno.

The time for processing elective residence visas is 90 days.

You must submit all required documents. Visa applicants must appear in person to submit their visa request at this Consulate General or at the appropriate Honorary Consul (please see the Consular Network link on our website). Applicants must pay the national visa fee for this visa.
